Fifth Bazaar Promises Good Variety

Saturday promises to be a gala and busy day for the Bethel 5th annual Bazaar which will start at 10 a. m. and last well along into the evening.

The various committees and organizations will be putting up their booths and tables Thursday and Friday evenings, finishing the decorating details bright and early Saturday morning.

Around the Common will be found Beano, Fancy work, State of Maine products, dairy goods, candy, plastic articles, with many fine things on sale to take home. Ice cream, cold drinks, and hot dogs to lunch on. Lions Club booth, a well known hand-writing analysis expert will be present to do readings, a fish pond where the youngsters may fish to their hearts content. All these will be around the Common, while the Main Street end will be wholly occupied by the Beano, Beans, coffee, pickles and salads and dessert. This is a new feature for the Bazaar and promises to be a busy one from 5-7 p. m. There will be an afternoon baseball game on the Gould Academy Athletic Field with Bethel and Locke Mills as the opposing teams. Movies will be shown at the Community Room during the day and evening.

At 4:30 p. m. the children and all will gather for the gala parade which is to start at 5 p. m. with Paris Band supplying music. Jane Smith, Donald Bennett, Oakley Codwin and June Merrill will lead them on their beautiful saddle horses. The Cub Scouts will march in a body with the colors. The children will follow with their carts, bikes, talks etc. Each is to receive a minute token for participating in the parade. The finale will be the floats for which prizes of $10, $50, and $5 are offered. While the judges are making their decisions a band concert will be held, after which announcements will be made as usual and the prizes awarded.

Other specials include a lovely night when some lucky person will take home an exhibit by the local 4-H Club of the animals that they are raising in their club work.

Charlie Helms and his Scouts assisted by the Cub Scouts are having a street dance at 5 p. m. with music that promises to be fine as "The Lords" will be there with Charlie Helms, Bob Tiff and others aiding to make music for the dancers and the onlookers. There are 10 door prizes that will be awarded at the dance, there are all contributions from the various stores and merchants. The Legion Beano will be in full swing all this time. The Committee hopes there will be entertainment to keep all busy and happy and thus make this fifth annual event even more successful than ever.

The proceeds are to be used: $150 for July 4, 1954, celebration and the balance for the improvement of the Crescent Park School grounds. So let's all be there and make it a wonderful day.

A meeting will be held next Monday evening at the Legion Rooms at 8 p. m. for reports and the money to be turned in to the Treasurer.

Rayden Keddy was admitted to practice before the Maine Bar at a special session of the Supreme Court held at Portland recently.

Mrs. Stuart Cross returned home Thursday of last week from New England Center Hospital, Boston, Mass., where she has been a patient.

The American Legion baseball team and Little League baseball team were in Boston Wednesday as guests of the Boston Red Sox at their game with the Philadelphia Athletics. They were accompanied on the bus by Francis Boyce, Rev. Robert Carter, Trooper Kenneth Wing, and Roderick McMillan.

These Textbooks

Are Challenged

During the last 20 years the teaching of sociology in our high schools and colleges has become one of the most influential educational forces in the country. The thinking of millions of youth is being shaped by what they study in sociology textbooks. Dr. A. H. Hobbs, professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania, has made an exhaustive study of 83 widely used textbooks. He declares that instead of giving unbiased presentation of scientific facts some of the textbooks are promoting the viewpoint of left-wing "liberalism."

"Severe criticism appears justified," Dr. Hobbs declares, "because textbook authors continue to mock the fundamental rules of scientific presentation and persist in flaunting their 'objectivity' as a protective banner under which they parade their prejudice. The presentation of 'scientific' facts becomes a special 'liberal' pleading becomes stronger in more recent texts and is particularly pronounced in high school texts."

Luring Young Minds

"This increased emphasis," says Professor Hobbs significantly, "occurs as courses in sociology become more popular in colleges and spread into schools where teachers lack necessary qualifications for evaluation, and where the immaturity of students may lead to uncritical acceptance."

Dr. Hobbs' findings are published in his book, "The Claims of Sociology: A Critique of Textbooks" (The Macmillan Company, New York, Pa.). The book is a scholarly, restrained analysis of textbook sociology. Dr. Hobbs under the tedious task of carefully examining the 83 textbooks with the hope that his analysis would lead to improvement of textbook materials and thus strengthen the relatively new field of sociology. The work has had little publicity outside of the sociology fraternity. It is a highly readable book for laymen. As an educator, a parent and a citizen I hope it reaches every educational association, school and college board and PTA group in the country.

Shocking Teachings

Dr. Hobbs' study was confined to the three most popular courses in sociology, Introductory Sociology, Marriage and the Family, and Social Problems. The 83 texts examined were used in these three courses. Their subject matter deals with personality formation, educational methods and goals, economic systems, government, marriage and the family, social controls, social disorganization, war, and social change.

In last week's column we listed certain conclusions which Dr. Hobbs claimed were being fostered in these textbooks such as "religion should discard supernaturalism (belief in God); a socialist economic system is better than a competitive one; a welfare state government is desirable; etc. Dr. Hobbs carefully points out that some of the 83 texts are exceptions but that the majority deviously undermine traditional American principles and beliefs.

Condemn Private Enterprise

In examining the viewpoint fostered by the textbooks in the realm of economics, Dr. Hobbs reports: "Most texts criticize private competitive enterprise as it functions in a capitalist economy. Criticisms are in the form of sweeping generalizations regarding harmful effects of the economic system. Few texts attempt a realistic comparison with earlier conditions in this society or with present conditions in other societies. Authors of sociology texts offer little more than glittering and subjective generalizations as alternatives which are presented in glowing contrast to their gloomy forebodings and criticisms of existing economic conditions."

Dr. Hobbs asks with powerful eloquence: "Is a presentation which criticizes a functioning system or contrasting it with hypothetical remedies which are believed to be attainable in non-existent alternatives?"

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

EIGHT years ago Mrs. Leocadia Garry, 3018 West Wells Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was sure her world had come to an end because her marriage was breaking up. She never thought it would happen to her and she tried desperately to hold on to it.

She couldn't sleep and when she tried to eat her throat would contract and she couldn't swallow. She lost twenty pounds in one month, and was a physical and mental wreck. She couldn't concentrate on anything.

Then one Sunday, at church, she heard a sermon that changed her life. The text was "The years that the locust hath eaten." At one point in his sermon the minister said the locust is the most destructive thing there is; and he compared it with our mind. He said, "Our minds can become locusts, gnawing away until we are destroyed."

He gave an illustration from the Bible. When Lot and his wife left Sodom and Gomorrah they were told not to look back, but Lot's wife turned to look and became a pillar of salt. He said, "She became crystallized in her past because she couldn't forget what she had left behind. Therefore, her mind destroyed her. Don't live in the past, lest you become a pillar of salt, but look ahead to the future."

Leocadia kept thinking about that sermon. Whenever she felt sorry for herself she would say over and over, "Don't be a pillar of salt, look ahead to the future." While she was thinking about that, she wasn't thinking about her troubles. One day she actually found herself planning for the future, then she realized that her past wasn't so important anymore. What a feeling of relief that was; she knew she would be able to think straight again.

CARNEGIE

CONGRESSIONAL

Q—How much was spent by and for Congressional candidates during the 1952 election campaign?

A—Campaign expenditures reported to the Senate and House totaled not quite $3.6 million. About three-fourths of this sum was spent to help Republicans. (Because of numerous exemptions allowed by law, actual expenditures were higher. In addition, campaign money spent on state and local levels was not reported to Congress.)

Q—How much did labor organizations spend on the national level in the 1952 Congressional campaign?

A—The 10 labor groups which reported to Congress listed expenditures of $32,117, led by Labor's League for Political Education, which said it had spent $171,700. LLPE is the political arm of the American Federation of Labor.

Q—To which party did labor give most of its financial support in the 1952 Congressional campaign?

A—Democratic candidates were the main recipients of labor campaign funds given directly to candidates according to the official reports filed with Congress. All but two of the 21 Senatorial candidates who received financial help from labor were Democrats. George S. Counts (Liberal, N. Y.) and William Langer (U. S. D.) were the exceptions. Seventy-five of the 80 House candidates whose campaigns directly received monetary nourishment from labor were Democrats, five were Republicans.

Q—Was labor successful in electing the candidates it supported for Congress in 1952?

A—Eight of the 21 Senatorial candidates and 42 of the 80 House hopefuls who received direct financial support from labor (as reflected in official reports to Congress) were elected. Thus, the over-all success score was 50 of 101.

Q—How much red tape—literally—does the federal government use?

A—The General Services Administration has reported that the government bought slightly more than 300 miles of five-sixteenths inch cotton red tape, paying $4,700 for the 3,550 spools, last year. The tape is used mainly to tie up documents for storage.

Q—Does the term "senior Senator" apply to age, or to length of service?

A—It refers to relative length of service of the Senators from the same state. The one with the longest continuous service is known as his state's "senior" Senator; his colleague is the "junior" Senator.

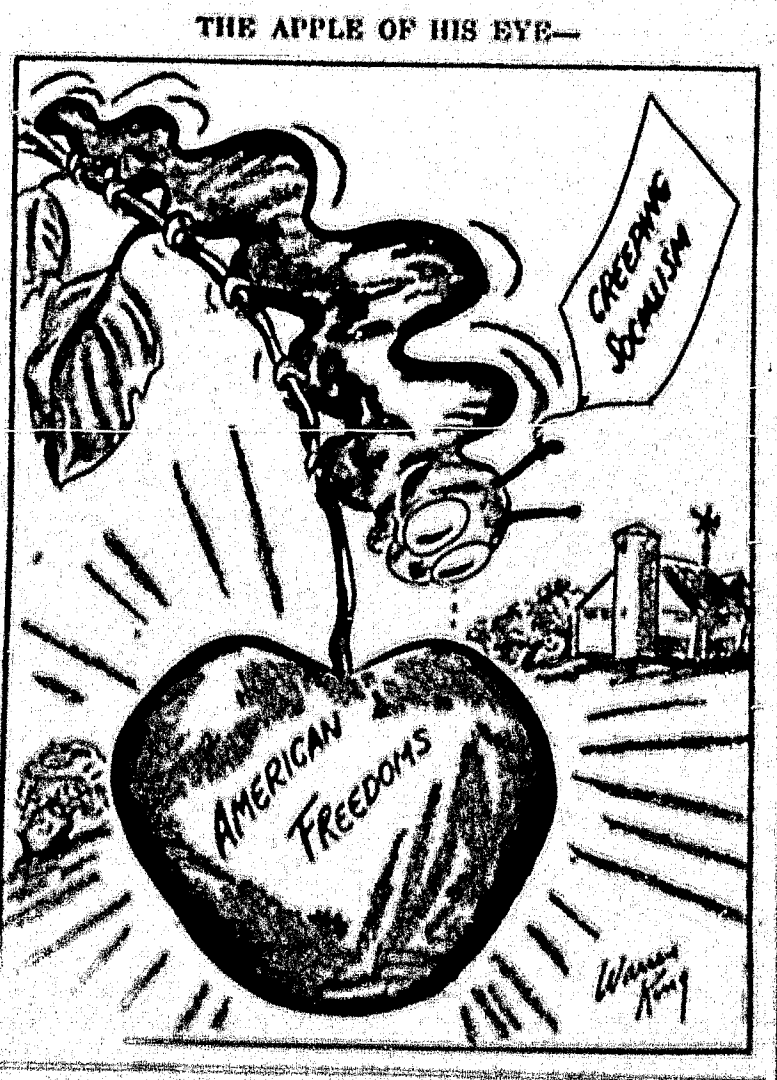

Q—What happened to the resolution to impeach Supreme Court Justice Douglas?

A—The House Judiciary Committee July 7 tabled the resolution, after holding a one-day hearing. The impeachment measure was introduced by Rep. W. M. (Don) Wheeler (D., Ga.) after Justice William O. Douglas stayed the execution of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, pending settlement of a legal question. The Court set aside the stay, June 19, and the Rosenbergs were executed.

Q—Does Congress set the boundaries of Congressional Districts?

A—No. After each decennial census, Congress apportions the membership of the House—in other words, says how many seats each state shall have. But each state's legislature determines whether the state will be redistricted, and when and how. If a state is entitled to more representation but does not redistrict, a Representative is elected from the state at large.

(Copyright 1953, Congressional Quarterly)

The systems, outlined in textbooks which are presented to immature and receptive minds under the auspices of the state, are the state's most powerful weapons. The action should come from the protection itself.

NO COMMENT

by Walter Chubb, Jr.

One of the major goals of the Eisenhower Administration is to slenderize the giant Federal bureaucracy and return many of its present functions to the states and to the people.

Simultaneously, the Administration wants the remaining federal departments and agencies to operate as efficiently and economically as possible with a minimum of competition with private industry.

These are point aims of two commissions authorized by Congress at the request of President Eisenhower. They are the new Hoover Commission and a commission on Federal-state relations.

You will be hearing a great deal in the next few months about this campaign to cut big government down to size and get people out of the habit of running to Washington with all their problems.

These commissions will study every phase of government. Some experienced legislators say their reports—plus action upon them—will answer the question: Is big Federal government too big to be controlled?

Former President Herbert Hoover, at 79, has yielded to requests that he head the new commission which is instructed to study the Federal Government. He sees in it an opportunity to chart a path to bolster private enterprise, cut taxation, lessen bureaucratic rule and improve governmental efficiency.

Other members of the commission are: Senators Ferguson (R-Mich.) and McClellan (D-Ark.), Representatives Brown (R-Ohio) and Holtz (D-Cal.); former Postmaster-General James A. Farley; Joseph P. Kennedy, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Robert G. Storey, President of the American Bar Association; Dean S. C. Hollister of the Cornell University School of Engineering; Arthur Flemming, Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Attorney General Herbert Brownell; and Sidney A. Mitchell, New York Investment Banker who has had considerable experience in the Federal Government.

The new commission has an even bigger task than the first Hoover Commission on reorganization of the government. The new commission not only seeks to improve efficiency in bureaus, but also will recommend measures for "reducing expenditures to the lowest amount consistent with the efficient performance of essential services; activities and functions; eliminating duplication and overlapping of services, activities and functions; abolishing services, activities and functions not necessary to the efficient conduct of government, and eliminating non-essential services, functions and activities which are competitive with private enterprise."

Mr. Hoover himself pointed to the huge growth of big Federal government, saying that in the last 20 years it has expanded from 400 different agencies to over 1,500; from about 600,000 employees to over 2,400,000, and expenditures have risen from about $4 billion to over $70 billion.

The Eisenhower Administration also wanted a study made of the ability and willingness of state, county and city governments to recapture many functions taken from them by the Federal government during the last twenty years. This will be done by the new Commission on Inter-Governmental Relations, which will consist of twenty-five members. President Eisenhower is seeking the best qualified persons for the monumental task.

The duties of this commission include "a study of the proper role of the Federal government in relation to the states and their political subdivisions, to the end that these relations may be clearly defined and the functions concerned may be allocated to their proper jurisdiction."

The commission thus must deal with such problems as Federal incursion into the domain of local governments in carrying out Federal aid programs of many kinds; proper allocation of tax sources; social security, aid to education, construction of highways and many other similar matters.

Some state officials have urged the Federal government to get completely out of highway construction and let gasoline taxes be the exclusive revenues for the states. There is a continuing struggle in Congress between those favoring Federal aid to education, and those insisting that it is a state and local responsibility.

Recently the 45th Annual Governor's Conference adopted resolutions demanding that big Federal government be cut down, and the power and responsibilities of the states be enlarged.

As a part of the question of tax allocation, the Eisenhower Administration has made known that it expects to present to Congress a new excise tax program. Many business groups have repeatedly urged general consumption taxes to replace the present discriminatory excise taxes and that some sources of revenue be left entirely to the states.

NOW that the Korean truce is a reality, what is the general reaction to it in Washington's official and semi-official circles? What are diplomats who gather there thinking?

Generally, they can be classified in three groups:

1. This group believes that the Korean truce was the thing to do and will mean peace in the world. They believe that those existing difficulties in the unification of that war-torn country can be solved by negotiation.

2. This group believes the truce agreement which the United Nations signed was a tragic betrayal of our policy of Communist resistance. They say this agreement will haunt the politicians in the years to come and is only prolonging the date of the final struggle, during which time the Chinese Communists will build up their depleted power.

3. This group's thinking is something in between group one and two. They believe the truce was the best that could be achieved under the circumstances and hope that the scheduled parity between the Reds and the United Nations will be fruitful.

All, however, are agreed that this is not the time for the western world to relax its guard against Communism or to think about demobilization.

Which of these three groups is correct in its thinking will be answered within a month or so after the negotiations begin.

And what will be the American approach in the talks?

Reliable sources in Washington are saying the administration will tell the Reds:

1. We will continue to train and build up the South Korean army and will maintain large armies there. The only way to get these forces to leave will be to agree to unification of Korea.

2. We will continue our embargo of Red China. (This many believe troubled the Reds more than anything during the war and was one of the main reasons for the truce.) The only way this embargo will be lifted is to agree to a unified Korea.

3. We will continue to resist China's admission to the United Nations as long as Korea is divided. (Some observers believe the United States used this point in obtaining the truce.)

The question in many minds is "what will happen?" If our plans get nowhere and the conference gets nowhere and we walk out?

No one knows the answer to the $64 question. As of now there seems to be only two answers:

1. The present armistice could continue permanently if neither side chooses to break it, but it would be an uneasy situation, to put it mildly.

2. War will erupt with a violence as yet unwitnessed in modern warfare.

and all of our fighting and all of the lives lost on the battlefield was for naught.

From The Chickasha Star, Chickasha, Oklahoma: Though we can't take a vacation this year, we would like to caution our good friends and neighbors, who can, to be most alert on the highway during the late afternoon and early evening hours.

A survey of several hundred police chiefs in the 48 states, pointed to this period as the time when most collisions occur in the summer months.

Though excessive speed still holds the lead as the greatest single cause of accidents, the police chiefs say that the overdriven driver, anxious to finish a long trip, accounts for many times more than his normal share of crashes during the summer months.

Following the car ahead too closely, and unfamiliarity with local roads and traffic laws also cause more accidents than during the height of the vacation season.

So be careful, please—we don't want to lose a good subscriber.

Thursday, August 20

There is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved. (Acts 4:12, 12SV). Read Acts 4:12-13.

CHRIST has many names, each of them very meaningful. Among them are Jesus, Immanuel, Messiah, and Son of man. The name of Christ commonly used is Jesus. It means Saviour. He saves you and me. He delivers and inspires.

The name Immanuel means "God with us." The unseen, afar off, and unknown became fully revealed and made near and known to us in Christ. In Him, God becomes our Companion who walks with us, and our Partner who helps us.

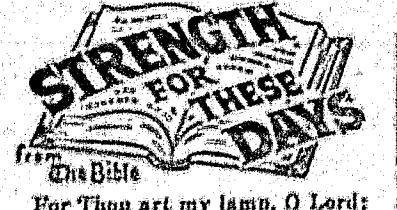

The name Messiah means the "Anointed." As the Messiah, sent from God, He takes the supreme place in the great purpose that God is working out in the world among men. Christ is the King who has come in the name of the Lord. He has come to establish the Kingdom of God.

The name, "Son of man," indicates that in Christ we can come into vital, personal contact with the living God. We can see God in the "Son of man." He has power to make us what we can become in Him.

Prayer
Dear heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Jesus Christ. He is our Saviour, our Companion, our King, and our Redeemer. Help us to believe and follow Him. In His name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day
"God... hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name."
—Francisco S. Galvez (Philippines)

In these days of confusion and frustration, anxiety and fear, we try this and try that in our search for peace in our souls and minds, for peace among men on earth. But rarely all that we try will prove of no avail unless and until we seek God and find Him, and strive to live daily in the light of His love.

George Peck

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George Peck is Chairman of the Board of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Executive Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.)

An old friend of mine, long deceased, upon occasion was wont to recite a maxim with great emphasis and feeling. It went as follows:

"The kind things that you are going to say when I am dead and gone, say now so that my heart may be cheered and gladdened by them. Postmortem kindness does not heal the wounded spirit and flowers on the coffin shed no fragrance backward over the weary way by which loved ones have traveled."

Courtesy, that most inexpensive of all human virtues, seems to have been lost in the shuffle somewhere along the way. Perhaps the reason for this is due to the trend in recent years toward paternalistic government, under which people take for granted as their due any service rendered or kindness extended, and feel that there is no necessity of expressing thanks.

The praiseworthy custom of saying a kind word has been tossed into the limbo of the Horse and Buggy Days. What was formerly the rule, has now become the exception, and very few folks now take time out to say kind words so that "hearted may be cheered and gladdened by them."

We excuse ourselves, and I include myself among the shirkers, by telling ourselves that in this busy day and age, we no longer have time to make the friendly gesture. Ralph Waldo Emerson exploded this fallacy when he wrote:

"Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy."

To say the kind word is not a one-way street. It blesses both the sayer and the one to whom it is said. Washington Irving pointed out the truth of this when he wrote:

"The constant interchange of those one thousand little courtesies which imperceptibly sweeten life, has a happy effect upon the features, and spreads a mellow evening charm over the wrinkles of old age."

Courtesy, the almost-forgotten art, sets the individual who exercises it, upon a pedestal. That man or woman stands out in a materialistic age as a shining beacon. It invests the individual with an aura of greatness. Lord Alfred Tennyson gave recognition to that fact as follows:

"The greater man has the greater courtesy."

And James Thomas Fields put it thus:

Rev. Robert H. Harper
The Children's Prayer Life
Lesson for August 23: 1 Timothy 2: 1-3; Romans 8: 26-28
Golden Text: 1 Timothy 2: 1-2

Writing to his "son in the gospel," Paul advises Timothy concerning prayers in the sanctuary. Some churches follow ritualistic prayers; others are led by the minister in "extemporaneous" prayers. But even so-called "extemporaneous" prayers fall in about the same pattern Sunday after Sunday.

Paul writes Timothy that prayer should be made for all men. He especially names kings and all that are in high place. This may not find such a wide acceptance today. We are more accustomed to pray for the poor and needy. But the great among us stand in need of prayer as does the humblest man in the land. If all men in government life had more of prayer for them instead of harsh criticism, there would be a better service on their part.

We are dependent upon the Spirit to lead us into right praying. He makes intercession for us, and we should years and strive to come into harmony with his will, both in living and in praying.

All things work together for good to them that love God. Have you ever looked back upon your life and realized how true it has been that things have worked for your good, even things which at the time distressed you? It will sometimes surprise you to do this. You may find that what seemed a terrible misfortune worked out in the course of time for your good. Remember that God sees things before they happen and can direct them for your good. Trust Him for your own needs and for the needs of those for whom you should intercede.

"How sweet and gracious even in common speech is that fine sense which men call courtesy."

Now what in the world has inspired me to write in this vein and to quote some of the great poets and writers of the past? It is due to a letter received recently from a newspaper editor. I had written him extending my congratulations on a well-earned and richly deserved promotion from Managing Editor to Editor of his newspaper. This is a custom which I have practiced over the years whenever something of this nature comes to my attention. But, alas and alack, few have extended me the courtesy of acknowledging a friendly gesture.

That is what makes this particular letter a stand-out. I am not divulging the identity of the writer because I know that with becoming modesty he would wish it that way. However, I can quote his letter. Here is what he wrote:

"Thanks for your note of congratulations."

"It is a pleasant surprise to receive good wishes from one with whom the relationship has been strictly business. I think the world might improve as a place in which to live if all of us took time out to say nice words to those who deserve them, and even to those who don't. Thanks again."

Yes, courtesy, the least expensive of the virtues, pays dividends in warming the hearts of both the giver and the recipient of the courtesy. Kind words do cheer and gladden.

And by the way, have you written your Congressman lately? I don't mean a letter requesting him to support this or that piece of legislation. I mean a letter thanking him for something he has done that merits your approval. His mail is filled with complaints and demands. How refreshing it will be for him to receive a letter which neither scolds nor requests, but simply says, "thanks."

To paraphrase the maxim of my old friend, I can hear my Congressman say: "The kind things that you are going to say when I am no longer your Representative say now so that my heart may be cheered and gladdened by them, to the end that I will be inspired to labor even more diligently and wisely in the interests of my constituents and of America."

With these cool nights and warm days, I sometimes wonder if things are as mixed up as they appear to be on the surface. Not to be sacreligious but it would almost look as if the good Lord were as mixed up as some of our politicians in high government positions but I do have faith that he knows what he is doing as least.

SOMETHING new has been added to fireworks, and it's another "Love Lucy" first. On the 4th of July this year, the place of resistance of the festivities on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia was a 20-foot set piece which, when exploded, showed Ricky Jr., the infant son of the Ricardos on the TV series, rocking in a cradle. Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz were heard on the public address system and Desi sang "There's a Brand New Baby at Our House". Here's a couple that's really bent on making their baby pay for itself in this life.

One of life's mysteries to men is the sight of his wife's bulging clothes closet and the familiar anguished cry, "But I haven't a thing to wear". One woman in the world who can't possibly resort to this explosive is Gale Storm, star of "My Little Margie". Gale averages five changes per episode and has made some fifty half-hour films for the comedy series. Her wardrobe has reached such proportions now that Gale is quite serious in saying, "I need a home just to hold all my clothes". which is an enviable position to say the least.

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL - The Four Knights' latest is a cello called "Baby Doll". It's backed by "Tennessee Train". For something unusual you may like Harry Karl's recording of that oldie "The Love Bug Will Bite You". "Nashimoto at the Bat" on the back, shows influence of G. I. Joe in Japan. "The Gang That Sang Heart of My Heart" is revived with excellent results by Jerry Sharr. He gives us an instrumental, "Sing, Sing, Sing Low" on the reverse. Jackie Gleason continues to conduct with success in "White House Serenade" and "The President's Lady" and on still another disc, he does "Peg O' My Heart" backed by "Lullaby".

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. Clara Mattingly, Louisville, Ky.: I remember when ice cream was sold from wagons (horse drawn) along the streets of Louisville. It was in bulk and we would take a bowl to the wagon and get it filled for a quarter. Also, the waffle man would drive along the street, making and selling hot waffles, generously sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon; or just plain powdered sugar. The waffle man had a stove in the wagon on which he cooked the waffles. And I remember, too, when men and boys would rise and give women a seat in public conveyances.

From G. G. James, Columbia, Louisiana: I well remember when mother made father's pants, as well as the boys', without a pattern. She sewed the suspenders, without an adjustment, to the pants in one length. I also remember when coffee mills were so scarce that if one family in a settlement owned one, it was made available to the entire community.

BETHEL TRIMS ANDOVER, 13-2

Bethel A. C. journeyed to Andover on Sunday afternoon and defeated the Andover nine by a 13-2 score.

Bob Baker kept eleven Andover hits well scattered, allowing two in the first, two in the second, and one each in the last seven innings.

Hall and Knox split the mound duties for Andover.

Bob Croteau had a perfect day at the plate with two bases on balls, three singles and a double.

Knox got three singles for Andover while Chasson collected a two-bagger and a triple.

The Bethel A. C. will play Locke Mills on the Gould Athletic Field at 2 p. m., Saturday, Aug. 22 as a feature of the Bethel Bazaar. This will be a Pine Tree League game.

Bethel journeys to Dixfield next Tuesday evening, Aug. 25, for a 6 o'clock P.T.L. contest.

"EASY DOES IT"
BY HELEN HALE

ALTHOUGH pickles are frequently made in crocks, it's better to pack them in sterilized glass jars to prevent any possible chance of spoilage.

Pickles which are exposed above the brine will frequently shrivel. Make certain they're covered while in the brine.

If water in your area has a high lime content, the pickle may be soft; if the water has a high iron

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Golden Corn Squares
(Serves 6-8)

1½ cups sifted, all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
¾ cup yellow cornmeal
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup milk
¼ cup melted shortening
2 tablespoons bacon drippings

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add cornmeal and mix thoroughly. Combine egg, milk and shortening and pour into dry ingredients. Stir just enough to moisten the flour. Do not beat. Pour into a greased 9 x 8 x 2-inch pan. Spread bacon drippings over top. Bake in a hot (400°) oven for 25 minutes.

content, the pickle may darken. For best results, obtain soft water when you make pickles.

Using a large amount of alum in making pickles crisp is to be discouraged. Crispness may be assured by more natural means such as using a good elder vinegar, mineral-free water, quality salt, pepper and spices. Always follow exact directions given in a reputable recipe.

Hollow pickles are caused by using faulty cucumbers. See that fresh cucumbers are long, slender, free from blemishes and a dark green color, for the green pickles. Old spices often cause a peculiar flavor to develop in pickles. Fresh spices give a quality product.

MEETINGS ON CLEANING RUGS AND FURNITURE COMING

Training classes on "Cleaning Rugs and Furniture" are being held in each county in Maine to train Extension leaders to hold community meetings later. These meetings during the fall and winter will cover care and cleaning of varnished woodwork, wood surfaces, upholstered furniture, rugs, fur rugs, plastic upholstery, and removing stains on rugs and upholstery. All Extension members will be welcome at the meetings.

A song is more lasting than the riches of the world.—Padraic Colum.

NOTICE

In keeping with the common practice in most communities our offices will be closed all day on Saturdays during June, July, and August.

Maine has a large number of business cooperatives which are owned, controlled and managed by farmers.

Children naturally imitate older people. Our State Police ask us to set a good example for the younger folks by cooperating with the effort to keep our highways and the roadsides clean and attractive. A good example is more effective than thousands of words.

Friends, an all-out effort by all of us can do wonders toward keeping our highways free from litter. If each one of us will refrain from throwing trash from our cars, it will be a big step in the right direction. Our State Police urge us to help KEEP MAINE GREEN.

MAINE GREEN PASTURES

WINNERS NAMED

Richard Fox, of Fryeburg; Schuyler Taves, of Union; and E L Souther and son, of Livermore Falls, are the 1953 winners in the Maine Green Pastures program. All three are young men who are doing an outstanding job of pasture, hayland, and roughage production and management. They have relatively small farms and average about 20 milking cows. Their pasture programs will be placed in one, two, three order and the best one scored in regional competition by the New England Green Pastures judges next week.

STATE DAIRY SHOW

A BIG SUCCESS

The annual State Dairy Show at Windsor August 1 was pronounced a big success. An all-time record number of animals was shown, with 543 head displayed and judged. This included 158 animals in the adult division and 385 in the 4-H club division. Four-H showmanship winners were Albert Dow, of Dover-Foxcroft; Edward Clark, of Orlington; Earl Lamphere, of Newport; Barbara and Bernice Jewett, of Pittsford; Laurette Caslangway, of North Livermore; and Ralph Conant, of Canton Point.

WORTH REPEATING

"By ignoring the tenth amendment, the 'do-gooders' have built up a vast costly Federal bureaucracy. We won't be free of this bureaucracy until we bring government back home," so each state, county, and municipality can know its own responsibilities and have its own sources of revenue."—E Jaffrey (N. H.) Recorder.

"Free, competitive enterprise is the basis of our unequalled material wealth. It is also the basic principle of a system which puts no limits on the economic or political achievements of the individual."—Dover (N. H.) Foster's Democrat.

"Disillusionment over deficits should not lead to defeatism. This newspaper has steadily maintained that in a time of great prosperity the budget can and should be balanced. We believe there are further opportunities to reduce waste without weakening the nation. We believe wise tax revision can increase incentives and ultimately increase revenues. But the difficulties cannot be wished away; they must be faced. Then there is a better prospect for overcoming them."—Boston Christian Science Monitor.
